

Interdisciplinary research

Definition:

Interdisciplinary research is an approach of research when the research expresses two or more academic disciplines in their studies

Criteria :

- The research theme is to fall in the areas margining the disciplines taught within Kerman university

Of medical science but at some line connectivity non-medical expertise's

- Projects recurrently export and academics from non-medical institute

- project integrality at least two disparate are an of research one of them being medically oriented

- Research project resultively in outcomes' affinity description other than medical.

-Assessment:

A committee appointed by the vice chancellor for research will sit bi-monthly to assess research project